A blue plastic container is filled with white wool. A dark, thin object, possibly a needle or pin, lies on top of the wool. The wool appears to be a mix of different colors, including white and light blue. The container is partially filled, and the wool is piled up in the center.
